PARLIAMENT: FULCRUM OF THE REPUBLIC

Rup Narayan Das

As India enters the year leading to 73rd anniversary of the Republic and 75th year of Independence, it is propitious to hail the Parliament as the fulcrum of the Republic upholding the principles and ideals of the Constitution including Unity, Integrity, and Sovereignty. It resonates with the spirit of Article 1 of the Constitution that proclaims “India that is Bharat, shall be a Union of States.” The Parliament, over the years, has successfully upheld unity amidst diversity and has strengthened democracy in the country. As we introspect and assess its achievements and failures, it is worthwhile to remember the words of former British Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden in 1954. “...the Indian venture is not a pale imitation of our practice at home, but a magnified and multiplied reproduction on a scale we have never dreamed of. If it succeeds, its influence on Asia is incalculable for good. Whatever the outcome, we must honour those who attempted it...”

When India liberated herself from the yoke of colonialism after the epic freedom struggle, the challenge before the nation was how to put in place an institution of governance taking into account the vastness of the country and its corresponding economic, social, cultural, linguistic and political diversity and disparity and socio-economic backwardness. Many who subscribed to the imperatives of economic and educational advancement as the prerequisite of a liberal democratic edifice expressed their apprehension if the Westminster model, borrowed from abroad, would be efficient applied to the native soil. But sooner than later, the swelling millions of the electorate who were otherwise illiterate and uneducated procured the prophecies of doom wrong by their robust and earthy common-sense. Nothing more, can prove better the resilience of the pulsating democratic and parliamentary polity than the regular and periodic elections to the representative institutions from the Panchayati to the Parliament, the vibrant press, the civil society, and the vigilant judiciary.

The Union Budget 2022-23, in particular, should ensure empathetic policy support for the lives and livelihoods facing unprecedented challenges. Coming to terms with an urgency to support the lives and livelihoods badly hit by Covid-19, the Union Budget 2022-23 is an opportunity to streamline the much needed policy measures. While looking ahead, it is important to look back. It is vital to recall that right before the global pandemic made an unprecedented contraction that was termed by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) as ‘historic technical recession’, the world’s major economies were not in a phase of comfortable economic growth. Subsequently, a trend of shrinking consumption and investment entered into the downward spiral with the global pandemic halting the normal business operations and letting lives and livelihoods suffer unimaginable losses.

Covid-19 an unprecedented crisis

According to the International Monetary Fund (IMF), the world economy contracted by 3.2 percent in 2020 and was projected to expand by 6 percent in 2021. The world economy expanded by 2.8 percent in 2019. No one should find these figures encouraging and assuring for a healthy trend. Even more alarming is sensing their imminent fallout and such phenomenon cannot be summed up in data and analysis alone. In the 21st century, as one of the world’s most significant economies, India too cannot choose to be isolated and going backward on the path of protectionism. In fact, it should continue its interface with the world and reap the benefits of convergence. That too, even at a greater scale. Notwithstanding such practical compulsion and efforts, India deserves to get a calibrated domestic economy with capacity to generate sufficient employment in formal sectors and help its burgeoning middle class population to give the economy a fraction of support, in terms of sustained demand. As a priority in the short run, the industrial growth impetus should be seen as indispensable for India. Equally important is creating a robust ecosystem for output and demand. As Victor Hugo said, “Nothing is more powerful than an idea whose time has come.” In 1991, the then Finance Minister of India (later Prime Minister for two terms: Continued on page 5

PARLIAMENT: FULCRUM OF THE REPUBLIC

Council of the States, and the President of India together provide good governance.

Passing the Law

The executive function of the Parliament is to pass laws. Every Bill has to be passed by both the Houses of Parliament and assented to by the President before it becomes law. The subjects over which the Parliament can legislate are the subjects mentioned under the Union List and Concurrent List in the Seventh Schedule of the Constitution. Generally, Union subjects are those important subjects which, for reasons of coordination, efficiency, and security, are administered on an all-India basis. The principal Union subjects are Defence, Foreign Affairs, Railways, Transport and Communications, Banking, Customs, and Excise Duties. The Parliament, being a dynamic institution, has been passed a number of legislative measures over the years including legislative provisions for the welfare and well-being of the people. It has also been amending or repealing laws, or abolishing departments, if they were found to be unnecessary or redundant. In recent times, scientific developments, particularly developments in the realm of information Communication, Technology, and cybercrimes have impelled the Parliament to make laws to deal with the emergent challenges. It may however be mentioned that the Parliament per se does not initiate the legislative proposals, it is the concerned Minister in the government who takes the initiative to bring the Bill before the House to introduce the Bill in the House. Parliament deliberates upon the Bill through various stages of its passing and also in the Select Committees or the Joint Committee of the Parliament. Perhaps, it is not widely known that the Parliament Select Committees or the Joint Parliamentary Committee by the Presiding Officer of the House, the views of the experts and even the stakeholders like the civil society bodies are often factored in the deliberations of the Bill. It is these characteristics of the Indian Parliament which is the source of its strength and sustenance. Our Parliament is an open system-open to ideas and suggestions and not a closed system as in some other political systems. The Parliament of India has the inherent self-healing and self-correcting mecha-nism. The animated discussions in the House and its Committees are presents of views of all the stakeholders.

Passing the Budget

The second important function of the Parliament is the passing of the annual budget. The budget is based on the democratic principle of 'no taxation without representation' espoused during the American Revolution. The budget is also the cardinal principle of parliamentary government that the executive cannot be neither raise nor spend money without the authority of the Parliament. The Parliament exercises control on the policies and functioning of the executive by demanding the right to review and examine the financial policy of the government and to authorise the expenditure and raise the tax revenue by the executive. There are provisions in the Constitution of India incorporating these tenets. For example, Article 265 of the Constitution provides that "no tax shall be levied or collected except by authority of law." Article 266 stipulates that "the Parliament may, by law, create, increase, or except with the authority of the Legislature." Article 112 envisages that "the President shall, in respect of every financial year, cause to be laid before Parliament, Annual Financial Statement." These provisions of the Constitution make the Government accountable to the Parliament on financial matters. The Annual Financial Statements laid before the Houses of Parliament constitute the Budget of the Union Government. This statement takes into account one financial year. The financial year commences on the 1st of April and ends on the 30th of March each year. The estimates receipts and expenditures of the Government of India for this financial year. The estimates of expenditure incorporated into the Budget are required to be voted by Lok Sabha are on the form of Demands for Grants. These demands are presented Ministry wise and a separate demand for each of the major services are presented. Each Demand contains first a statement of the total grant, and then a statement of the detailed estimates divided into items. It may be mentioned that the practice of separate Reporting (SR) and the practice in vogue since 1924, has been dispensed with from 2017. The discussion on the Budget begins a few days after the Budget presentation in the Lok Sabha. In a Parliamentary system like ours, it is mandatory to discuss the budgetary provisions and various proposals for taxation. Since the Parliament is not an annual session, there must be a provision for the commencement of the new financial year, a special provision is made for "Vote on Account" to finance the expenditures of the government for the expenditure for running the administration. Traditionally, the "Vote on Account" is taken for two months. But during the election years, the government may find it convenient that the main Demands and Appropriation Bill will take a longer time than two months. The "vote on Account" may be for extinction beyond two months. This provision speaks of the sagacity of the framers of the Constitution who could foresee such contingencies.

After the first stage of the general discussion on the Budget, the House is adjourned for a fixed period. During this recess, the Demands for Grants of various Ministries and Departments are referred to the respective Standing Committees. These Committees are required to present their reports to the House within a specified period without asking for further time. The practice of consideration of Demands for Grants started from the year 1932-33 to enable the House to consider the Demands for Grants through the Committee method. The Committee is close, the Lok Sabha has the right to vote on these demands. It may be present even on any demand or even to reduce the amount of Grant sought by the Government. In Rajya Sabha, there is no general discussion on the Budget. It does not vote on the Demands for Grants. It must also be noted that the Finance Bill is presented on the Consolidated Fund of India is not subject to vote by Lok Sabha. The Charged Expenditure includes the emoluments of the salaries and allowances of the Chairmen and Deputy Chairmen of Rajya Sabha and the Speaker and Deputy Speaker of Lok Sabha, Judges of Supreme Court, Comptroller and Auditor General of India, and certain other items specified in the Constitution of India.

Ensuring Executive Accountability

Article 75(3) of the Constitution provides, "The Council of Ministers shall be responsible to the House of the People." The legislative and administrative power of the country is based on the Parliamentary system. The effectiveness of the Parliament's control over the executive is ensured by a variety of procedural devices such as Parliamentary Questions, Calling Attention Notices, Half an Hour Adjournment Motions and Motion of Confidence and No Confidence. Besides discussions on the Budget and Precedent resolutions, there is also what is called the 'Zero Hour' which is not mentioned in the Constitution or rules of procedures. Nevertheless, it is in the vogue. The question of the development of a developed institution control over the executive. It is generally the most interesting part of the Parliament. Parliament and its Committees and Members of Parliament, to subject the executive to critical examination both in respect of its policies and actions. The first 'Zero Hour' in the Rajya Sabha when the House is in session is the Question Hour which begins at 11 am. The Question Hour followed by the Zero Hour in the Rajya Sabha, however, the Zero Hour now begins when the House meets at 11 am and it is followed by the Question Hour which is not widely known is the silent and invisible role of Parliamentary Committees, as a microcosm of Parliament, in ensuring executive accountability which needs to be understood and appreciated.

Our Judiciary and Defense Forces:

The Sentinels of Democracy

We must salute equally vital institutions such as our impartial judicial system in strengthening Parliamentary democracy in the country. Our professional and administrative forces deserve to be commended for their valour and bravery in upholding the Unity, integrity and Sovereignty of the nation both during crises and normalcy, in mitigating calamities both natural and manmade. Our soldiers are unsung heroes in protecting the nation's unity, integrity and enabling its unhindered growth as a democratic Republic.

Commemorating the Birth Anniversary of Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose (23rd January)

SUBHAS CHANDRA BOSE IN SOUTH-EAST ASIA

While bidding farewell at a ceremony in Berlin to the first contingent of Indian Legionaries on their way to a training centre in East Asia, Subhas broke down and wept because, as he said, being in a foreign country, he had nothing to offer them except hardship and suffering. A group of twelve young men, who had volunteered and who formed the first corps of the Indian Legion that expanded later into a Brigade formation of nearly 2500 men, had assembled in the Office of Free India Centre in Berlin and Subhas sorrowfully remarked that he felt so unhappy that, being in a foreign country, he had really nothing—not even some presents—to give to those young men who were going to risk their lives. This feeling of being dependent on foreigners, and being unable to finance the I.N.A. with national resources, haunted him all the time.

Being scrupulously correct in money-matters, Subhas always felt uneasy because the financing of his work was done not by Indians but by Germans and Japanese and this feeling of uneasiness always gnawed at his soul. The slightest hint that his organisation depended on foreign money would fly him into a rage, and that was why as soon as he was able to raise money from Indians in East Asia, he made payment towards the loan the Germans had given him and the record of this payment has now been registered by the German Foreign Office. Similarly, the letter, which we are reproducing here, a letter written by Subhas from Indian Independence League Headquarters in Singapore to the Japanese Headquarters of the Hikari Kikan—clearly states that the assistance given by the Japanese to the Indian Independence League will be honoured and regret by the Free Indian Government.

CONFIDENTIAL

INDIAN INDEPENDENCE LEAGUE

HEADQUARTERS

No. 7 Chancery Lane

Sydenham

The Headquarters,

The Hikari Kikan,

Sydenham.

Bangkok, 26th August, 1943

Dear Sirs,

We are grateful for the material assistance in cash and in kind that we have received from time to time and that we are going to receive in future through the Hikari Kikan from the Imperial Japanese Army Authorities. We desire very much to treat the above material assistance as a loan from a friendly power which the Government of Free India will duly honour and repay. I shall, therefore, feel obliged if the above material assistance given to us is put under account-to-be called the “Indian Account”-and the interest thereon is duly calculated.

When the Provisional Government of Free India is formed and is recognized by the Imperial Japanese Government, the above material assistance given to the Indian Independence League, East Asia, should be debited to the Provisional Government as a loan duly incurred-which the Government of Free India will honour and repay.

I shall be thankful if this arrangement is approved.

Yours truly,

Subhas Chandra Bose

President.

Indian Independence League.

East Asia

In fact, one of the reasons why he decided to leave Germany was that he began to feel more and more uncomfortable for having to seek financial help from the German Foreign Office and it gradually occurred to him that he would be able to raise funds from the Indians in South East Asia and pay back the debt which he had incurred in Germany and which he considered to be a loan to the Provisional Government of Free India, a loan which he wanted to pay back after independence. Just before he went to Taiwan on his fatal journey, he never forgot to transfer sums of money from a Japanese bank in Berlin, as mentioned before, as a part payment of the sums advanced by the Germans to the Azad Hind Sangh. Subhas was always from his childhood scrupulous about money transactions and it particularly hurt his sensibilities that he had to take help from foreigners.

Nevertheless, he undertook a great sea voyage to East Asia in a German submarine in the hope of being able to be (i) near to India, and (ii) amongst the Indian community in South East Asia who, he had learnt from Japanese reports, were willing to support his campaign against the British in India. His main feeling was that by being in South East Asia, he would be able to get rid of the suspicion which the British had tried to propagate all over the world—Subhas was working as a stooge of the Germans. His hope was that when he would be in South East Asia, he would be amongst his own countrymen and he would not be dependent on foreigners either for material or moral support. This hope was largely fulfilled and, on his arrival in Singapore on July 2, 1943, he immediately found himself amongst an enthusiastic Indian crowd who had been expecting his arrival since a long time. People of Indian origin in South East Asia—businessmen and workers, clerks and lawyers, the poor and the rich—all welcomed him with open arms, for they had come to believe that with the arrival of Subhas Bose in South East Asia, a new phase of the campaign against the British would begin.

Subhas Bose’s predecessor, Ras Behari Basu, a well-known revolutionary had fled from India after having thrown a bomb on Lord Hardinge, the Viceroy of India, as he was entering Delhi on an elephant soon after the announcement of Delhi as the capital of India. Ras Behari had fled to Japan and married a Japanese lady and was a protege of the famous Japanese nationalist Toyama. In Japan, there was also a small group consisting of Japanese and Indians which clustered round Basu and, throughout the years, kept up the light of Indian freedom movement alive and, when the Japanese army overran the whole of South East Asia, these people and Ras Behari Basu thought that the time had come when they would really be able to fulfill the dream which they had cherished of marching to India in order to challenge the British army. But the difficulty which Ras Behari Basu experienced was that, being away for so long a time from India, he was not able to understand fully the mind of the young Indians, nor was he very familiar with the current problems. Basu’s idea of India was still the pre-World War I India, and he was unable to, therefore, understand the working of the mind and the thinking of those young Indians who rallied round the Independence of India League under Captain Mohan Singh. It was at this moment that Subhas Bose arrived on the scene.

He was well known to the Indians who had joined the British Indian Army and who were captured by the Japanese. They knew Subhas Bose not only as a young nationalist hero but also as a man who had been honoured by the highest office in the country at the age of 41. His differences with Mahatma Gandhi notwithstanding, every Indian, who found himself in South East Asia, knew how great was his patriotism and when, by skill and patience, Subhas Bose began to reorganise the League and the Indian National Army, it was natural that his arrival had worked as an electric spark to the entire Indian population in South East Asia. Subhas Bose, however, had learnt a great deal from his stay in Germany and he knew that the Great Powers, who were engaged in war, were not very seriously interested in Indian independence. He had, therefore, to proceed very cautiously and when he met General Tojo, the Japanese Prime Minister, he did not ask for too much but, in his conversations with the Japanese Prime Minister, he made it a condition, as he had earlier made with the German authorities, that the organisation and the Indian National Army, would function independently and outside the Japanese war machine. He obtained an assurance from the Japanese Prime Minister that the Japanese military authorities would not interfere with the inner working of the I.N.A. and that the administration and the training of the I.N.A. would be left entirely to Subhas Bose and his colleagues.

General Tojo was a man of remarkable vision. He agreed to the conditions set by Netaji and gave him free hand to reorganise the Indian prisoners of war in South East Asia. Tojo knew that the British would not raise a large force in South East Asia. Subhas Bose having been assured of this support and a great deal of sympathy at the highest level, proceeded cautiously and step by step, firstly, in reorganising the League which had been much battered by internecine quarrelling. Secondly, he reactivated the Provisional Government of Free India with its capital in Singapore. He knew that both these organisations were necessary, firstly, because even a Government in exile must have a political party behind it to give it political and popular standing and, secondly, unless there was a semblance of Government with all the paraphernalia of administration and other regular activities, it was impossible to obtain loyalty and action from other people who were not inclined to take orders from merely a political organisation. Thirdly, he set out to boost up Indian morale in South East Asia and to prepare for his march to Burma for a confrontation with the British Indian Army in Assam, showed what a master tactician he had developed into and what talent for organisation he had acquired. Both the League and the I.N.A. took some indispensable parts of the same organisation functioning with the sole objective, by keeping them separate, he really succeeded in winning the loyalty and support of all the Indians in South East Asia.

Empowering Girls for a Better Tomorrow

National Girl Child Day is celebrated in India every year on January 24 with the aim of generating awareness on the issue of gender equality (CSR) and creating a positive environment around valuing the girl child. The broad objectives of celebrating National Girl Child Day are to highlight the inequalities faced by girls in the country, promote awareness about the rights of a girl child, and generate and maintain the importance of girl education, health and nutrition.

The Government of India is implementing various programmes/ schemes and legislations to address various forms of gender discrimination. For example, the scheme titled "Better Betrayal: Child Marriage (Amendment) Act, 2021" was introduced in the Winter Session of Lok Sabha for raising the age of marriage of women from 18 years to 21 years.

The root cause of gender discrimination is the patriarchal mind set prevalent in society. Though this mindset is changing with urbanisation and education, there is still a long way to go for a permanent change.

Beti Bachao Beti Padhao

Beti Bachao Beti Padhao Scheme (Celebrated Girl Child, Enable Education) was launched on January 22, 2015, at Panipat, Haryana to address the declining CSR. The CSR, defined as a number of pregnancies at child age 15 or below, stands at 0.6 years, declined sharply from 976 in 1961 to 918 in Census 2011. This is a tri-ministerial initiative of Ministries of Women and Child Development, Health, and Family Welfare, and Education which aims to focus on awareness and advocacy campaigns for child marriage, promoting sectoral action in select districts, enabling girls' education, and effective implementation of the Provisions of the Pre-Natal Diagnostic Techniques (PCPNMT) Act.

The scheme aims to prevent gender-biased selective elimination of male sex ratio at birth (SBR) and number of female live births (NFB) and to provide health information and services to the girls. The scheme also envisages to sensitize the masses with the help of nation-wide media campaigns, which among others include social media, radio, TV, video spots, SMS campaigns, community engagement and a series of mobile exhibitions, and field publicity, mailers, handouts, brochures and other information education communication (IEC) material.

The scheme has stired up collective consciousness about changing the mindset of the nation towards valuing the girl child, and has resulted in increased awareness, sensitisation and consciousness building around the issue of the declining CSR across the country. This has led to an improvement in the Sex Ratio at Birth (SRB) by 19 points at the National level, from 918 in 2014-15 to 937 in 2020-21.

Sukanya Samriddhi Yojana

Sukanya Samriddhi Yojana is a small deposit scheme of the Government of India that proposes to financially empower the girl child. It is launched as part of the Beti Bachao Beti Padhao Campaign. The scheme is meant to meet the education and management expenses of the girl child. Under this scheme, girls have been economically empowered by opening their accounts under Sukanya Samriddhi Yojana with a minimum deposit of Rs 1000 and a maximum of Rs 1,50,000 can be deposited in a financial year. Some of the benefits associated with opening the account include a compounding interest rate, savings on income tax, and when an account reaches the maturity age, account balance includes the interest on savings.
Prime Minister for two terms: Singh 2004-2014) Dr Mammoth quoted it before making history by presenting the grand plan for economic reforms in India. Beyond the words too, the spirit of economic reforms steer India's growth momentum. In the quest of finding a balanced development paradigm, this is an idea whose time has indeed come.

Giving its due to economic rebonding process

The believers of "India Growth Story" have all the reasons to keep high expectations from the Union Budget 2022-23. The Finance Minister, Mr. Senthil Vivekananda, had been speaking with provisions for economic revival, as the third wave of Covid-19 has gripped the country and added to the gloom of previous two waves that caused unimaginable losses of lives and livelihoods. Precisely, the Union Budget 2022-23 should essentially focus on demand generation, job creation, public healthcare, hand-holding Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs) and agriculture. The new economic policy of the country has regained the lost thrust of ideally double-digit growth. As a shock-absorbing exercise, it would be wrong to recognise the centrality of increased production and consumption capacity for now as the major driver of economic rebonding process. The fiscal interventions have been playing a historically important role in the crisis situation. India successfully bringing back its economy after showing no signs of slacking global economic recession of 2007-08 with fiscal prudence and well-judged monetary policies. As Covid-19 has severely impacted the economy in the second consecutive year, it is time for solid actions for maximising the revenue while keeping public expenditure as rational as possible. In search of meeting the revenue target, the public sector assets should not be considered for sale if these have sufficient potential for revival. On the tax front, the revenue from tax collection of recent quarters have been encouraging. However, the glaring deficit would need a deep strategic manoeuvring for revenue generation. The individual taxpayers especially in lower slabs are expected to get some relief as they have lived under uncertain existence with the Covid-19 changing the way the world functioned earlier.

As the growth propellers, investments, should be sharpened with offering reliefs to the key sectors including Housing, Infrastructure, Energy, Agriculture & Food Processing, Pharmaceuticals, Healthcare, Education & Skill Development, Automobile, Textiles, Tourism, Aviation, Hospitality, Information Technology & Information Technology Enabled Services (IT & ITeS), Banking, Financial Service and insurance (BFSI), Financial Growth and Sustainability. Manufacturing Competitiveness, Strengthening MSMEs, Supporting Exports, Technology, Research & Development (R&D). The Ease of Doing Business (EoDB) and compliance should be made smoother as India's pursuit is to maintain its edge as a prominent global economy and further enhance its global positioning. The impact of economic reforms in India has been most visible on the primary sector (services) where India emerged as the major power in comparatively a new sector like IT & ITeS. Now it is time the progressive reforms be prioritised in the primary sector (agriculture) and secondary (manufacturing) sectors also avail their true potential. If the Union Budget 2022-23 can present a few growth drivers on this front, it will have far-reaching positive effects.

The Goods and Services Tax (GST) collections have been signaling well for the economy, over Rs 1 trillion every month for the month of December 2021 reflected on the increased economic activities

OCEES - 2022 and DGFS - 2022

TRAINING SCHEMES AND EMPLOYMENT DESCRIPTION

1. One Year Orientation Course for Engineering Graduates and Science Postgraduates for the year 2022-2023 (OCEES-2022) conducted at the BARC Training Schools Table-1 lists the BARC Training School Centers for this course and a brief description of the Training Program at each of the Training Schools. A Trainee Officer (TSO), who scores a minimum of 50% aggregate marks on completion of the Training Program, is deputed to the concerned UOS. Successful TSOs will be posted as Scientific Officers in one of the following UOSes:

a) Bhabha Atomic Research Centre (BARC), Mumbai
b) Indira Gandhi Centre for Atomic Research (IGCAR), Kalkarpuram, Tamil Nadu
c) Rajarama Raja Raja Raja Chola (Rayalaseema) Technology (RRTC), Secunderabad, Telangana
d) Variable Energy Cyclotron Centre (VECC), Kolkata

2. Two-Year DGFS Graduate Fellowship Scheme for Engineering Graduates and Postgraduates for the year 2022-2024 (DGFS-2022) Under this advanced Fellowship Program, Officers to be posted as Scientific Officers and Positions after completion of the course will depend on their scoring their employment in the BARC. After successful completion of one-year course at the Institute, Fellows undertake project work, which is supervised by a Project Adviser and jointly supervised by a Project Adviser and a Project Co-ordinator. Officers are posted as Scientific Officers in OCEES after completing one year of training. Fellows are also deputed to the BARC Training Schools and selected for DGFS Officers (ODCF) and posted in one of the following UOSes:

a) BARC, Mumbai
b) IGCAR, Kalkarpuram

Eligibility Criteria

- Holding a degree of Master of Technology in any discipline of Engineering.
- Age limit: Not more than 28 years as on 1st June 2022.
- Selection will be based on interview.

The Government of India, Department of Atomic Energy (DAE), Bhabha Atomic Research Centre (BARC) Training Schools

FRM IT is an additional Training Scheme option available to applicants belonging to Mechanical Engineering or Chemical Engineering (codes 21 and 22). FRM-IT is an additional Training Scheme option available to applicants belonging to Electrical Engineering or Electronics Engineering (codes 24 and 25). RSMES is an additional Training Scheme option available to applicants belonging to Mechanical Engineering or Metallurgical Engineering (codes 21 and 22). RSE is an additional Training Scheme choice for applicants belonging to respondents under scheduled castes/tribes and other backward classes (codes 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42). There are no separate Training Schemes called 'Nuclear Engineering' and selected candidates belonging to Nuclear Engineering (code 29) will be allotted RSME or Mechanical or Chemical as their Training Schemes.

- (a) Online Screening Examination: It will be conducted in nine engineering disciplines (codes 21-22) and in four science disciplines (codes 41-42 and 45) at more than forty places spread across India. The results of the Online Screening Examination for OCEES/DGFS-2022 will be held in April 2022. Travel Allowance is not payable for appearing in the test.

(b) GATE Score: Candidates will be screened in for Selection Interview on the basis of a valid GATE Score.

(c) T-Off: GATE scores for screening into Selection Interview will be decided only after the Online Test has concluded and candidates are therefore advised to maximize their chances of being screened into the Selection Interview stage by availing of the screening option. Applications of candidates in Nuclear Engineering (code 29) will be considered only through the Online Test.

Students graduated/graduating with a Masters Degree from University of Mumbai – Department of Nuclear Engineering or a Master of Science Degree in Nuclear Engineering or a Master's Degree in Science of Science Education and Research (INSEER), Bhabanwar in the academic year 2020-2021/2021-2022, and whose Consolidated Grade Point Average (CGPA) is greater than or equal to 7.5 (or a scale of 10 will be given a Selection Interview stage, provided they meet an additional eligibility criterion related to their field of study and居). Students are invited to submit their applications for the OCEES/DGFS-2022 program on the Online Application Portal and select the NERU/Institute as an option. Selection interviews of short-listed candidates in all disciplines except Geology will be conducted at the BARC Training School, Mumbai. Interviews in Geology will be held n the geographical location of the applicant. The selected candidates will be deputed to the respective UOSes as per the availability of the program on the Online Application Portal. The final selection results will be on the Online Application Portal, available in the last week of April 2022. Final Selection is solely on the basis of performance in Selection Interview, subject to the conditions of eligibility.

Other Opportunities: Candidates applying for OCEES/DGFS-2022 may be considered for direct recruitment in Electronics, Computer and Automation Engineering (ECS), Electrical Engineering (EE), and Electronics, Electrical and Telecommunication Engineering (EETC).

ELEIGIBILITY CRITERIA

A. Qualifying Degrees and Other Academic Requirements for OCEES/DGFS-2022

Choose one of the following disciplines and requirements:

1. BE/ B.Tech (Integrated M.Tech.) or equivalent degree in Mechanical Engineering or Chemical Engineering or Electrical Engineering or Electronics Engineering with a minimum of 60% aggregate marks in years 2021-2022 and 2022-2023.

2. BE/ B.Tech (Engineering) and Postgraduate in Integrated M.Tech. with a minimum of 60% aggregate marks in one of the 9 engineering disciplines (codes 21-29) mentioned in Table-1. Applicants opting to be considered on the basis of a GATE score must have a valid GATE 2021 or GATE 2022 Score in the same discipline as their Bachelor’s degree. The chosen discipline will be the same discipline as the selected discipline.

Those having qualifying degree in branches like Aerospace, Automobile, Automotive, Aeronautical Engineering, Industrial Production, Reliability, Ceramics, Architecture, Geodesy, Geomatics, Computer Engineering, Mechatronics, Power Engineering, Power Plant Engineering, Control Engineering, Software Engineering, Electronic Engineering, Computer Engineering, Biomedical instrumentation etc. are NOT eligible.

b) For Fast Reactor Technology-M (FRM_TT code 30): BE / B.Tech / B.Sc (Engineering) / 5-year Integrated M.Tech in Mechanical Engineering or Chemical Engineering or Electrical Engineering or Electronics Engineering with a minimum of 60% aggregate marks in years 2021-2022 and 2022-2023. The chosen discipline will be the same discipline as the selected discipline.

Candidates with performance in the M.Tech./M.Ch.Engg. and OCFD programs are below a specified threshold will get zero increments.

Selection Process

Selection to OCEES/DGFS-2022 is a two-step process: Screening to short-list candidates and Selection Interview of the short-listed candidates. There is a separate selection process for each of the disciplines listed in Table-1 except for FR-IT (code 30), FR-IT (code 31), Q&AOC (code 32), and RSES (code 44).

The crisis and global response

A scenario where an acute public health crisis and systemic failure are defining the existence of humankind beyond borders, it essentially imagines a post-pandemic world with a realistic view about the damages made and how to go ahead on a path less travelled. To brave the new world, otherwise elusive, a global commitment is needed for revitalising the United Nations (UN), international financial institutions such as the World Bank and regional development banks like Asian Development Bank (ADB). The UN’s role is still very critically important in creating a common platform for finding a broad-based approach to strategise the economy, rebundling process globally and re-establish the norms of international economic engagements and development partnerships.

15 January 2021 press release of the World Bank, “In response to COVID-19 severely damaging the lives and livelihoods of millions of people in developing countries, the World Bank Group deployed over $157 billion to fight the pandemic’s health, economic, and social impacts over the last 15 months (April 1, 2020 – June 30, 2021). This was the largest crisis response of any such period in the Bank Group’s history and represents an increase of more than 60 percent over the 15-month period prior to the pandemic. Bank Group commitments and mobilizations in fiscal year 2021 (FY21) alone (July 1, 2020 – June 30, 2021) amounted to almost $110 billion (or $64 billion excluding mobilization, short-term financing, and recipient executed trust funds).” This is somewhat reassuring, such responses are the need of hour—and not just the international development agencies and financial institutions but also the better off countries with development partnership budgets should re-prioritise the spending plans for making the world better.

“The COVID-19 pandemic is more than a health crisis, it is an economic crisis, a humanitarian crisis, a security crisis, and a crisis of human rights. This crisis has highlighted severe fragilities and inequalities within and among nations. Coming out of this crisis we require a whole-of-society, whole-of-government and whole-of-the-world approach driven by compassion and solidarity.” United Nations response to Covid-19 is principally well-meaning. After its late institutional response to the crisis, the UN is making concerted efforts with the socio-economic response and recovery plan for the middle and low-income countries. As per the UN’s own estimate, while a significant proportion of the UN’s $11.6 billion worth of sustainable development programmes is being repurposed towards COVID-19 needs, additional funds are required. Noticeably, the UN Covid-19 Response and Recovery Fund supports the rapid implementation at the country level of the UN Sustainable Development Goals (UNSDG) framework for the immediate socio-economic response to COVID-19. While the action through communication and socio-economic responses have been praise-worthy, the UN surely couldn’t act in the same manner on finding the cause of Covid-19 and its unusual global spread through its General Council or Extraordinary Meeting.

Supporting lives and livelihoods

The Covid-19 pandemic is usually termed a ‘one in a hundred years’ crisis that has globally impacted the lives and livelihoods in unprecedented manner. As the crisis has global nature, India is severely impacted as well. While the world is self-assured to see a sort of re-set, it is the time for the government and industry to reckon the urgency of figuring out their immediate priorities, including on supporting the MSMEs and Exports Sector, the backbones of the economy. A change in approach is much needed at this point of time, before the fundamentals of the world order go into reset mode, there should be determination to revive the MSMEs and Export Ecosystems to support the much needed demand factor of the economy. This is the time for proactive collective action to come out of the trying time with a blueprint for revival of the economy.

The changing world necessitates creating a firmer ground for defeating poverty and inequality—and making sustainability, as the steering force of our business and social action. Wolfanism is not an obsolete concept, this should be reimagined. While recognizing a post-pandemic world and coping with some of the glaring transitory challenges, an overt inclination is much needed for adopting the inclusive and sustainable development framework. We have to come through this together.

A forward looking Budget: The need of the hour

The Union Budget 2022-23 will be defining for India in emerging from the crisis and reassuring its stake to sustainable growth. A balancing act with recognising the growth impetus and inclusiveness would do immensely well for the Indian economy in short, medium and even long run. While the fundamentals are still strong and supportive, the right policy measures will decide how India comes out from a crisis in the post-pandemic world.

India is waiting for a forward looking Budget. The policymakers should reciprocate in full spirit. This is the need of the hour.

PARAS MEHROTRA
DEHRADUN, UTTARAKHAND

It is appropriately said that everything appears beautiful in retrospect as after reading about “Swachh Bharat Mission” I got nostalgic and remembered my hostel roommate, with whom I shared four years of my college life. Without beating around the bush, I would like to directly take you to a day of our fourth semester when we both were walking back to our room after completing a hectic day at college when the sight of litter on the college premises forced the two of us to dig a discussion about how certain things could never change. As we discussed cleanliness, I kept the students for littering and the management for not providing enough trash barrels to cover the college property. We continued this discussion for about ten minutes. After that, what my friend did completely started me. Instead of coming up with a usual witty remark against my logic, he started collecting the empty packets that were strewn along the way. As a witness to his act, even I began to assist him. By the time we reached our hostel, we had collected not more than 10-12 packets. But my friend’s gesture was enough for me to realize that though the trash was not great in quantity but the fact that it was scattered indifferently all over the place made the premises appear fifty. Now it was clear to me that instead of complaining, it is wise to initiate a change. Action is contagious as what one does is copied by another. In my opinion, if more and more people start practicing cleanliness, it has the potential to spread like anything.

PAVAN
GOPALAPATNAM, VISAKHPATNAM

I work in Defence. Before joining the forces, I was not mature enough to know about importance and significance of hygiene and protecting the environment. During the training, we had to clean our rooms, our surroundings and do the gardening. I used to wonder why I was being made to do this instead of actual training. I often felt that I had come to the wrong place as I was doing things that were not directly linked to my service. It took me a long time to realize that those activities were integral part of our training as it aimed to build us not only as a soldier but also a gentleman who is concerned about the country’s environment and hygiene. But when I did realize this, it brought about a lot of changes in me. In past I bought sometimes like a chocolate, I would throw away the wrapper somewhere on the road or in the nearby bushes. But now, if I fail to find a dustbin, I keep that plastic in my pocket until I find a proper place to dispose it. I do this because I realize what pain it takes to maintain cleanliness. If you do not clean your own trash, someone else will have to do it for you. And you are also polluting the environment. You have no right to do that.

I am of the opinion that we should let children do at least some activities related to cleanliness and environment protection like gardening and participate in lectures on the topic and activities in schools. I am sure they will realise that they have some responsibility towards the country’s environment and its protection.

HARIDIL NOOR SINGH SAIHNI
GURUDWARA RAKABGANJ ROAD, NEW DELHI

My contribution towards Swachh Bharat Mission is: There was a small pit in my locality into which people used to dispose their garbage day and night. The entire surrounding stinked. One day, I and a group of youngsters decided to take things on our own hands. We cleaned the place ourselves and sanitized it with disinfectants. We planted small plants and placed a placard which read ‘Cleanliness is Next to Godliness’ and ‘Swachhta Hai to Jeevan Hai’. I also organized a nukkad play to sensitize the people about Swachh Bharat Mission and its benefits. With this contribution, I hope I have played my role in the clarion call by the Hon’ble Prime Minister for a Clean, Green, Open Defecation Free, Healthy and Progressive India.

- Former RBI Governor Ujit Patel appointed VP of AIIIB
  Former Governor of the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) Shri Ujit Patel has been appointed as a Vice-President of the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIIB), a Beijing-based multilateral development bank. Shri Patil, 58, will be one of the five Vice Presidents of the AIIIB with three-year tenure. Shri Ujit Patel had taken over as the 24th Governor of the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) succeeding Shrigurum Rajan in September 2016 and was with RBI till December 2018. An economist of great repute, Mr. Patel takes over as Vice-President at a time when AIIIB is expanding its footprint in developing countries, especially India, where infrastructure is seen as a key driver for growth. India has emerged as AIIIB’s biggest beneficiary by obtaining $6.8 billion funding for 29 projects across various sectors, especially in transport and energy.

- Sri Lanka to go bankrupt by 2022 with record-high inflation
  Sri Lanka is facing a deepening financial and humanitarian crisis as inflation rises to record levels, food prices rocket and its coffers run dry. According to media reports, the meltdown faced by the government, led by President Gotabaya Rajapaksa, is in part caused by the immediate impact of the Covid-19 crisis and the loss of tourism but is compounded by high government spending and tax cuts eroding state revenues and vast debt repayments to China. The World Bank estimates 500,000 people in Sri Lanka have fallen below the poverty line since the beginning of the pandemic, the equivalent of five years’ progress in fighting poverty.

ECONOMY

- 2nd quarter of FY 2021-22 sees 2 lakh additional jobs in key sectors
  The rate of employment in India is showing an increasing trend with the estimated total employment in nine main sectors touching 31.1 crore in the second quarter of the current financial year (July to September 2021), according to the second round of the Quarterly Employment Survey (QES). The employment figures are 2 lakh higher than the estimated employment of the first round of QES. The nine selected sectors are manufacturing, construction, trade, transport, education, health, accommodation & restaurant, IT & BPO and financial services. The report released by the Labour and Employment Minister Bhupender Yadav highlights that the manufacturing sector engages 39 per cent, education 22 per cent and health, 10 per cent of the estimated workers. The overall percentage of female workers stood at 32.1 per cent which is nearly three per cent higher than the percentage reported during the first round of the survey. The report further highlights that regular workers constitute 87 per cent of the estimated workforce in the nine selected sectors, with only 2 per cent being casual workers. However, in the construction sector, 20 per cent of the workers were contractual and 6.4 per cent were casual workers.

- World Bank predicts 8.3% growth for Indian economy
  The World Bank has said that the Indian economy is expected to grow at 8.3 per cent in the current financial year. It has upgraded India’s GDP growth for the next fiscal to 8.7 per cent, reflecting higher investment from the private sector and in infrastructure, and rebounding from ongoing reforms. In its latest Global Economic Prospects, World Bank said, the growth outlook will also be supported by ongoing structural reforms, a better-than-expected financial sector recovery, and measures to resolve financial sector challenges despite ongoing risks. It said, global economic growth will dip to 4.1 per cent in current financial year and 3.2 per cent in the next fiscal.
